Messrs. McCully and Roberts went on another four-days' camp-hunt into Abbeville county last week, and this time caught eight foxes that they got and two or three that they did not get. On Thursday morning, after catching four greys, they jumped a red and caught him in less than an hour. Frequently while they would be chasing one fox they would jump another, the dogs, seventeen in number, would divide and catch them both before stopping. Mr. Roberts met one in the road, and while riding along by a swamp heard another barking as though bantering in hounds for a chase. The foxes are so thick in the neighborhood where they hunted that the inhabitants find it difficult to raise poultry of any kind, and the thinning out of the cunning tribe by these gentlemen is, therefore, a great kindness. Abbeville county ought to pay them a royalty on all they catch. We did not say that that would be the price a week after the issue of our paper containing the statement, and not responsible for such construction of our remark. What we said was true at the time it was said, but not a week afterward, for the town was overrun with peaches for once, and some of them sold as low as twenty-five cents per bushel. The public square and streets of the town were the quietest on last Saturday night than on any Saturday night for many a day. Before the bar-rooms were closed there was always a large number of colored men, more or less intoxicated, who made the town noisy with loud talking, laughing, and not unfrequently oaths; but none of this was to be heard last Saturday night, as soon as the usual trading was done and the week's supplies laid in, the streets were deserted and everything became quiet, and by 9 o'clock there was searcely a person to be seen.

The Abbeville Medium says of the S. V. R. R. in its last issue: "The grading of this road from Mt. Carmel to Gilbert's mill, a distance of six miles, was let out last Monday to S. S. It may be taken for granted that men who are now living will see the iron horse rushing through the Savannah side bringing provisions from the Northwest." Yes, in less than three years you will have the schedules of the Savannah Valley in the Medium, a free ticket in your pocket, and will be advocating the building of a branch road from Abbeville to tap this road at some point between Lowndesville and the place of intersection with the Greenwood & Augusta Road.

A TALK WITH OUR CUSTOMERS.

LOCIC AND FACTS!

WE are entering now upon the seventh yea: I our business career in this Town, and as everything in the material world undergess a change at that period, we deem it not inopportune to make our fature changed course known to all of our friends and enemies. An old proverb says that a good man must have enemies, and how could it be otherwise? While we have broken down High Prices, and it may established a system of Low Prices, we naturally incurred the risk of making enemies of those who were in a burry to become rich, and who were so narrow-minded as not to perceive that they were driving the best trade away, which was actually forced to seek cheaper markets. Look at Anderson to-day! How marvellously has her trade increased! How she is attracting notice all over the State as the best Town in it, and how progress and improvements are visible on all sides! It was and is not our intention to run against crotring ruin to anybody, our sole purpose was and is to undersell all, and to maintain that envisible reputation for Fair Dealing which we have so firmly and thoroughly established. Doing a strict Cash Business, and therefore not lesing a single cent on bad debts, do you not perceive that this is one great reason why we can afford to sell cheaper? Keeping the largest stock in the entire up-country, though we have not the room to display it in a gorgeous manner, as our Store is filled to excess almost, from end to end, from top to bottom, we soon had the largest trade. Do you not believe that he who sells the most can sell the cheapest? Offering crerything at popular prices, never resorting to a common and mean practice of selling one thing cheap and "making up" on another, do you not believe that the good people of this County soon found out that we were the undisputed Leaders of Low Prices? And having such a large trade, and buying and selling in such large quantities, we find no difficulty in constantly adminish useful have a selling goods cheap, we are studying our own interest, and not the interest of those who w better policy to make a little, and be sure of that little, and by honesty and industry to increase your trade.

For this coming season we have made special arrangements with leading manufacturers that will prove of great benefit to all of our customers. We have engaged several new salesmen, and trust to be able to wait upon all in proper manner. Throw aside your prejudices, if any should still exist, created by absurd stories that we had only come to make money, and that we would stay only about a couple of years, and so forth, and give the great New York Cash Store a chance to convince you that we are more determined than ever to offer Goods at really low figures.

Come and see us, and Mr. Rose, Mr. Arnstein, Mr. Webb, Mr. Hoke, Mr. Canningham, etc., etc., will all be glad to wait upon you.

FALL ANNOUNCEMENT!

FRIENDS AND PATRONS:

I desire, through the medium of this paper, to make my usual semi-annual bow to you, and to tell, not in any high-flown flowers of rhetoric, learned lore or classic literature, but in simple, plain English, that my Fall and Winter Stock is now arriving, and that I extend a special invitation to you to inspect the same.

I make a specialty of Fine Clothing, Foreign and Domestic Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Hats, Trunks, Notions, &c., at lower prices than elsewhere in this market.

My Stock has been selected this Fall with more than ordinary care, and with the express purpose of suiting each individual case. I have carefully noted your several desires, and have made my purchases accordingly. And I am positive that I speak the simple "truth" when I assert that I can suit every one, both in quality and prices. In fact, I can save you money, for experience has taught me "when" and "where" to buy at the lowest trade and manufacturers' prices. This I have done, and will now give my patrons the benefit of this experience.

I extend to the public my grateful acknowledgments for their very liberal and constant patronago, and I pledge increased efforts on my part to merit a continuance of the same.
